About Us

The Wensleydale Railway is a volunteer-led heritage railway serving the local community, offering tourists, families and transport enthusiasts a great value day out in the Yorkshire Dales with lots to see and do along the way. Our railway is 22-miles long and is one of the longest heritage lines in the UK. We currently operate heritage diesel train services between Scruton (near Northallerton) and Leyburn on the outskirts of the spectacular Yorkshire Dales National Park.

We have award-winning, restored historic stations where visitors can learn more about 1900s railway life whilst enjoying free guided tours with our costumed living history interpreters.

We are currently working to restore passenger services from Leyburn to Redmire. This 5.5-mile section of the railway last saw passenger services in early 2020. In July 2025, the railway launched a new appeal called 'Securing our Future' (<https://www.justgiving.com/campaign/securingourfuture>).
